

Bee Venom – An alternative to Botox.

If you are considering giving your face a lift, you may want to try one of these organic and natural facelift options as an alternative to going under the knife.

Bee Venom Masks

The latest magic ingredient being added to skin creams, lip-plumping potions and sticky face masks has been creating buzz. Bee venom, long used in ancient medicine, is being touted as a “natural Botox” that stimulates the body’s production of collagen and elastin to smooth, lift and tighten skin. The venom also contains a compound called melittin, which has been shown to have anti-inflammatory properties.

The all-natural products being touted as a safe and organic facelift alternative is bee venom. This product is currently used at certain spas and, is even available over-the-counter. The product is made from real bee venom, although if you want to ensure that their specific product is organic, you should check out the ingredient list.

The bee venom is applied to the face like a regular facial mask. After dubbing it onto the skin, the venom then stimulates the production of elastin and collagen. These substances help to give the face a smoother texture by reducing the appearance of wrinkles and fine lines.
